The Virtual Tourist – World

The map below shows the location of three types of Web Information Services: Maps of WWW/NIR sites in a country, Lists of WWW/NIR sites in a country, and "Virtual Tourist" Guides of a country (some of which are very good).

Click on any of the dots to go to that resource, or on the inset maps for more detail. If you don't have graphics support, here is a list of locations on this map. Here is CERN's Master List of WWW Servers (incomplete but useful) arranged by geography. If you're more interested in the tourism info, try the GNN's Traveler's Center. Here is What's New with the VT service.

Please send me any suggestions, corrections or additions.

☐ Audio Info
☐ 'Beam me up, Scotty'

Someone created this beautiful wooden map of the EXPO terrain. It shows all the exhibits and how they are situated. The map appears to be made of sandalwood (if your browser supports it, you should be able to smell it) and uses inlaid redwood for its letters and for the road. The structures on the map are painted by the worlds finest artist. EXPO is proud to have replica's of some of the worlds most distinguished architectural buildings

Although the map appears to be made as a good old dutch map, it is in fact a full electronic (but still dutch) version that gives you all the info you want by clicking at the right place on the map. Again your browser will need to be one of the best available today, because the browser must support mouse coordinate mapping and audio.
